Pavlov University, St Petersburg, Russia

Question Card 41 - Example

Task 1. Read, render and answer the questions to the text.

Sugar is the main reason why so many of our favorites snacks and treats taste so delicious. Not only that, but it's also affordable and readily available pretty much anywhere. But there are a lot of the risks of sugar consumption.

It's well known that eating too much sugar can cause obesity, diabetes, and heart disease. But did you know sugar can also make chronic pain worse? It's true – eating too much sugar causes your body to react in all kinds of painful ways.

Consuming sugar causes our bodies to release such chemicals as insulin and stress hormones. These chemicals can trigger inflammation, which is one of the most common causes of chronic pain and chronic inflammation, which occurs when the body sends white blood cells to an area of injury or infection.
